Foreign steel quotas loom

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON--Big steel this week is telling the House Ways and Means Committee that we need import quotas on foreign steel. In general the steel spokesmen will get a sympathetic hearing. Such congressmen as John Byrne, Wm. Hornum Schaeff, Pa., and Joel Brothill, Va., who are all Republicans, were almost rude to last week's witnesses testifying against import quotas.

Many business leaders who depend on foreign exports, such as Robert S. Eckley of Caterpillar Tractor, testified that import quotas for steel would be "catastrophic for American foreign trade." Nevertheless congressmen have the protectionist bit in their teeth, and also are under local pressures during this election year.

Judging from the temper of Congress and the inability of the Johnson administration to exert any authority, import quotas on steel, textiles, oil and meat would be adopted were it not for the congressional adjournment timetable. Congressmen want to get out of Washington by Aug. 2.

Historical note. It was passage of the highly protectionist Smoot-Hawley tariff which led the United States into the great depression of the 1930s. As now, we were then exporting more than we imported. When Congress put up barriers against foreign goods other nations quickly retaliated.

With the aid of the depression, imports of foreign products dropped from $4.46 billion in 1929 to about $2 billion in 1932--but U.S. exports also dropped, from $5.3 to $1.6 billion. In other words, Congress cost U.S. business more than two-thirds of its foreign sales, and millions of U.S. workers involved in both the import and export business lost their jobs.

Today our export trade amounts to $30-billion a year, imports around $27 billion. Many million more workers are involved than 40 years ago--in manufacturing, transportation, packaging, sales. So if Congress should follow the Smoot-Hawley trail again, especially in the present precarious state of the economy, it could be devastating to jobs and corporate profits alike.

Yet some segments of U.S. business and some congressmen seem to want to try the same economic suicide again.

Rockefeller's chances

Though we still believe Richard Nixon will be the Republican nominee, Nelson Rockefeller still has an outside chance. If he had started his fight earlier, he could have overtaken Nixon. Whether Rocky succeeds still depends chiefly on whether he permits the powerful economic forces of the Rockefeller family, including the Chase Manhattan Bank and Standard Oil of New Jersey, to twist arms. If the big Eastern establishment, which hitherto has controlled the Republican party, throws its weight into the Rockefeller arena at Miami, it's conceivable that Rockefeller could win.

However, Rocky has shied away from using economic pressures of this kind. We believe he will continue to do so.

Muzzled HHH

Relations between President Johnson and Vice President Humphrey are delicate and will remain so until after Humphrey is nominated at the Democratic convention in August.

For five years Johnson has alternately praised and bullied Humphrey. There have been occasions when he has bawled him out; other occasions when he has entrusted him with delicate missions. Few vice presidents have been through as much turmoil and had to adjust to more difficult situations as HHH. These around the White House know how the president blows hot and cold. Though they sympathize with Humphrey, there have been times when they have refused to give him the time of day.

All this accounts for Hubert's inability to speak out on his own on major issues. As vice president and a loyal member of the team, he has had to play second fiddle to Johnson's policies, whether he liked them or not--and hasn't approved of them in Vietnam.

Under the circumstances Humphrey has done amazingly well. You can expect him to be more outspoken once he is nominated for president by the Democratic party in August. He then will be in a position to chart his own program for the next four years, not merely defending his old captain.

Berlin crisis

The East German passport squeeze on West Germans traveling to Berlin is exactly what American diplomats have feared for some time. They had predicted that with the United States bogged down in South Vietnam, the communist world would make things rough for the United States around Berlin. This has now happened.

Actually the passport red tape instituted by the East Germans is only a technicality. But it's a technicality which is very important to the West Germans since compliance with it, they argue, means recognition of East Germany as a sovereign state. They want no shred of concession that East Germany is a separate and independent state.

East Germany, of course, actually is an independent state. It has become one of the more important industrial states of Europe. But the ambition to unify East and West Germany is still cherished by West Germans.

The American airlift which thwarted the Berlin Blockade in 1950 was for the purpose of preserving the same myth that East and West Germany were not officially separated and that East Germany didn't exist. However, the United States has no planes readily available now to operate another airlift. About 70 per cent of the traffic between West Berlin and West Germany goes by ground transportation.

American diplomats report that Moscow is going along with East Germany because it has to do something to appease President Walter Ulbricht. He is the most difficult of the socialist leaders--an old Stalinist who has objected vigorously to the democratization of the Red Army's move into Czechoslovakia.

There can be no shooting war over Berlin. American troops are too far committed in South Vietnam. All we can do is protest.

American frustration was one reason why President Johnson looked so glum and talked about "deep and dangerous differences with the Soviet Union" when he signed the SALT Pact between the two nations last week.

A Conservative View

by James J. Kilpatrick

WILMINGTON, DEL. If there is one truth that has to be learned about the problems of the so-called ghettos, it is that the white man cannot impose his own solution on the black man. The truly workable answers must come from within the black community itself.

Southerners have been saying this for years, but Southern accents go unheeded. Richard Nixon propounded these truths in a major address the other day, and found himself denounced as 'lacking in compassion' for his pains. Several of the black militants have been harping on the theme, but they tend to swamp the reality in a flood of vituperation.

As a consequence, the overwhelming bulk of the country's involvement with the Negro is still a white involvement. White persons, by and large, have fixed the policies, designed the programs, provided the money. White administrators have built the public housing projects and laid down the rules for living in them. White officials, as a general proposition, have chosen the textbooks, decreed the courses.

All this has been done with good intentions and pure motives.

Yet one is reminded, all the same, of the Mad Hatter's watch. The March Hare, trying to be helpful, had greased it with butter laid on with a bread knife. "It was," said the March Hare, "the best butter." But the watch wouldn't run.

So, too, with a hundred programs of Negro uplift. They don't work, or like the Job Corps, they work only in part and then at high cost. The ventures suffer from a humanitarian overkill. They are the work of white persons who love the Negro. They will butter him up and love him to death. So too much money is provided, too much equipment, too much direction. None of this buys the indispensable intangible--the black man's pride in his own achievement.

Ask Andrew Smithman, if you please. Ask his wife Gene. They are the moving spirits of a small operation known as the New Castle Industrial Training Center in the Oakmont section a few miles from Wilmington. On a pitiful budget, in a couple of rooms they have painted and fixed up themselves they are teaching their fellow Negroes not merely the tools of a trade

Last year 570 adults and 214 children made use of their training center. They received instruction in painting, carpentry, sewing, dressmaking and slipcover cutting. The Smithmans also sought to teach them history. A history of black people. No, indeed, they offered an outline of the history of the United States. They taught capitalism, including 'the profit motive and the role of private property.' They taught 'the idea of freedom and its limits.' They taught 'the business of being a citizen.'

The Smithmans have geared their modest program to the slow pace of their Negro community. They want and need white help, but their goal is to encourage Negro enterprises capable of making it alone. The atmosphere is catching on. A block from the training center a small shopping center has come into being--a drug store, grocery store, barber shop, laundromat, upholstery shop. Every one of the stores is black-owned and black-operated. The proprietors are making money, but they are making much more: Dignity, hope and pride.

Report from capitol

By Sen. Martin Smith

The final phase of the governor's program - highway improvement - is just before being acted upon in the State Senate. Week before last the Senate debated the bill which would designate those highways to be four-laned or improved by the governor's $400 million highway program. During the almost day-long debate, I was able to present an amendment adopted to include a four-lane program for the port of Highway 89 in Hancock County in and around Bay St. Louis. There are some substantial differences in the Senate-passed bill and the one passed by the House and this matter will now go to a conference committee to try to work out the difference. It is generally hoped that this committee will remove the Highway 89 amendment. The other bills which are a part of the highway program expected to come up in these final weeks are to remove the debt limit upon highway bonds and an increase of one and one-half cents in the gasoline tax to pay for the bonds.

While I can see the need for highway improvements in the state, the expenditure cost involved in the proposed program seems so great, I certainly have very serious reservations about a program so extensive that an additional gasoline tax will have to be levied. While it appears that such a tax bill will pass, I do not feel that I can conscientiously vote for such a tax at this time.

Although I voted against the annual session proposition when it was before the Senate and was personally opposed to it, it has been my position that the people of this district and the state were entitled to express their opinion by vote. For that reason I did not attempt to include my views on the subject in this column prior to the election. The matter has now been adopted, however, and I will work toward making it a workable system, with meaning given to the limit upon time provided for each session.

The legislature is finally in its closing weeks and many bills are being considered each day. There are still differences to be resolved in the sales tax bill and the income tax bill. The bills passed by the Senate differ greatly from those passed by the House and both matters are now in conference committee. These committees are composed of three Senators and three Representatives who will attempt to arrive at some compromise over the differences.

LARGEST AMMONIA PLANT--The world's largest ammonia manufacturing facility, located in Bayou Casotte, has capacity of 1,500 tons of high quality ammonia, a primary fertilizer. The plant is owned and operated by Shell and Oil Company of Kentucky and the ammonia is shipped throughout the Midwest and South by Chevron Chemical Company through the Gulf Division Refinery at the Mississippi River mouth.

Fallacy of mail gun sale control

Barring some emotion settling it seems certain the omnibus crime bill being considered by the U.S. Senate will include a tough provision forbidding mail sales of rifles and shotguns.

A month ago a similar measure was beaten 53 to 29, but Tuesday a Senate subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee unanimously voted to include the provision. At the same time newspaper accounts say Republican Leader Everett Dirksen will not oppose the ban; that Democratic Majority Leader Mike Mansfield relaxed his opposition last week; and on it is a persistent foe of this proposal, Sen. Roman Hruska, (R-Nebr.), said he would now support the measure.

At the same time the first two days of a week long Associated Press tally of deaths by firearms found 31. One was accidental; 12 suicides; and 21 murders. If the two days are typical the annual rate is 6,205 deaths from firearms.

Notwithstanding all these deaths and the recent assassinations of Sen. Robert Kennedy and Martin Luther King, we feel this prohibition is ill advised. In arriving at this opinion we are not considering the unlikely possibility the courts may consider the law unconstitutional because of the second amendment to that document which reads: "A well regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms, shall not be infringed." (Emphasis ours).

The proposed law makes no pretense of prohibiting one from buying a rifle, pistol or shotgun. It is the sale and shipment by mail that is prohibited. (We don't know whether express or freight shipments are involved.) In one respect this falls right in line with our frequently expressed support of "buy locally."

Yet more is involved. People in small cities like Bay St. Louis and Waveland would generally be limited to the makes, models and calibers stocked by local merchants. Even in cities the size of New Orleans gun buffs would probably find it hard to acquire makes and calibers they want. The one other effect we anticipate, is average higher retail prices for guns.

Sen. Kennedy was not killed by some imported, high priced pistol. It was a common .22.

There are two old sayings about the Supreme Court: "The law is what the Supreme Court says it is." "The Supreme Court follows the election returns." The first saying has proven true, for the moment; the second seems to have gotten lost in the shuffle.

Hemet (Calif.) News

As others see it

Rich kids get honor, not money

It's getting so that true scholarship can't be honored anymore. Local scholarships, we learn, are not necessarily awarded on the basis of accomplishment, but need.

It is, perhaps, a symptom of our sick educational philosophy, a philosophy that ignores excellence in favor of mediocrity. The philosophy assumes that the same education should be acquired by all, and our schools are organized to educate the masses to an average norm, largely ignoring the special needs of the gifted and the retarded. Further, the philosophy assumes that everyone should have a college education. If, in fact, we must lower the quality of that education so that everyone can have a chunk, so be it.

We have found it is a near impossibility to award a scholarship locally purely for excellence. Local scholarships are based on financial ability of the recipient. If, for instance, the top scholar in the class is from a well-to-do family, that top scholarship--intended for the student which accomplished most during high school years--goes, instead, to a good student who is deemed to need the money worse. If a scholarship is established to go to the top scholar, period, that scholarship is so awarded--but other scholarships, to which the top scholar also qualifies, are then given to someone else. The theory is to spread scholarship money around to as many students as possible. This discriminates against the scholar of adequate financial means.

A scholarship award, we feel, should honor and recognize superior work, period. It is just as difficult for a student from a wealthy family to achieve academic excellence as it is for a student from a poor family. It may be true that the wealthy family can better afford the college education of its scholarly children. But, while the tendency of a wealthy family is to meet all the economic needs of their children, one thing money can't buy is academic excellence. Mother and Dad don't purchase straight A's. Johnny has to work for that. And, if he makes it, it is his own accomplishment. Why, then, should he not reap the rewards of his labors?

Is there any fairness in a system which awards a book as a top award to the wealthy valedictorian but denies him the full-tuition scholarship he would have received had his family not been well-to-do? Is there anything fair in giving the big-money awards to the less wealthy scholar, not because he earned it but because he needs it?

If a scholarship is set up to be awarded on a basis of need, then fine. But we deplore the practice of subverting the purpose of scholarships established to recognize outstanding scholarship by passing them out from the check book instead of the grade book.

Rich kids, too, deserve the opportunity to actually earn something through the sweat of their own labors. Scholarships are for scholars, rich or poor, not weapons to be used in fighting the war on poverty.

Port group hears plea for added payment

The port and harbor commission has no legal method to pay U.S. Stockstill for an area he cleared at Mulatto Bayou that is not covered in the original project, Attorney Gerald Cox advised the group last Thursday night.

This commission can only speak through its minutes and there is nothing on the books authorizing payment on an increase in acreage for clearing and grubbing at the Mulatto Bayou project, he said.

Stockstill said he had lost about $14,000 on the job. Elliott Casanova, president in the absence of president Donald Landry, said the commission could give thought to proceeding against Stockstill to recover liquidated damages incurred at the rate of $100 per day. Stockstill, commissioners were told by Jack Williams of Michael Baker, Jr., Inc., of Jackson, the commission's engineers, had run 97 days over contract time.

Stockstill agreed that the area in question was not in the original specifications and that he had cleared outside his line but felt that as the commission would utilize all the area, sooner or later the work should be worth something to the county.

He said he did not expect full payment of $200 per acre, the original unit price, but would accept whatever the commission felt just.

Four acres are involved, 18 of which have been recommended for payment by Michael Baker, Jr., Inc., on grounds they are of definite advantage to the project.

The attorneys are to determine if the land is required by the commission at this time and, if so, what payment arrangements can or should be made.

Switching to the airport, commissioners were told that four proposals had been received for the running of perimeter line.

Eugene Richards was awarded the contract. His base price was $858. Other proposals received were Weston and Wheat, $1,300; Michael Baker, Jr., $1,400, and W.S. Goldman, $1,748.

Commissioners decided to quiz the board of supervisors as to when it intends to start construction of the airport access road, pointing out that immediate action is required by the Federal Aviation Administration.

They said they thought the supervisors had originally agreed to build the road, then, when the time fell high, the supervisors claimed insufficient funds were available and asked the port and harbor group to advance the required dollars.

On May 9 the commission agreed to this route but so far no activity in this direction has been observed.

The road, for which 13 acres of land has been acquired, apparently runs through a swamp and some consideration has been given to relocating it to higher ground. This might lessen fill required and speed construction though require more land.

Hill pointed out the road had been designed to enter the airport at the terminal building and industrial site area and its plans had been approved by FAA.

4 dockets cleared in marathon port session

Four claim dockets were approved Thursday, but with some amendments, when the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission met in a marathon session that lasted until nearly midnight.

Combined total of the dockets amounted to $97,236.37 and were for general expenses, construction, and clearing and grubbing work at the port site.

Claim docket A, for a final amount of $5,371.21, ran into snags over a separate listing of business cards for Charles Hill, port director, in the amount of $13.10. This, commissioners felt, ought to go with the balance of Hill's expenses for which he is reimbursed.

After some discussion the item moved to that category. A second item for $1,200, part payment for survey and plans for the airport access road, was moved to the construction fund docket.

Claim docket B, construction account for $80,099.90 passed without discussion. The final two dockets, for $9,812.07 and $2,013.19 dealt with payroll, materials, truck hire and the like at the port project, for clearing and preparation of industrial sites.

Commissioners also authorized payment of $109.50 for an adding machine.

Hill reported he has been in contact with several industrial prospects and that the port is receiving consideration by three of these.

He said that as the result of the commission's stop work order last month he had curtailed all clearing operations at the site and the county equipment, with the exception of one crane and a bulldozer, has been removed.

These units, together with a rented trash box, are busy clearing stumps and floating debris off the end of the dredging operations and piling it up for burning.

He said he has completed clean-up on approximately 200 acres with the clearing and grubbing substantially complete on an additional 100 acres. Hill reported a 60 per cent completion figure of clearing and grubbing of about three acres in an area of the port known as the ravine.

Dredging operations should be complete within the next 10 days and at that time he will use the crane to drag the barge along the east side of the harbor, to commandeer barge, to outfit from clearing operation along old U.S. 90 may be obtainable for protection of barge from operation caused by rain.

Sewer tie-ins surge ahead

Tie-ins to Bay St. Louis sewer system are on the upswing since notice has been given the public that penalties will be sought against non-complying property owners. Building Inspector Harry Benjamin reported Wednesday.

To date 1,410 permits have been issued for sewer connections and 1,251 have been installed. In June alone 21 permits have been secured for the work and Benjamin figures they will run over 30 before July. That's the most in a long time.

The tally, requested by Commission Council on the recommendation of its citizens advisory committee, has been completed on those places not yet connected. Benjamin estimated these number about 900.

After July 1 a copy will be forwarded to County Sanitarian Wayne Alliston who will send form letters notifying offenders they must have their tie-ins under contract by Sept. 1.

Alliston will be asked to file affidavits through City Court against persons not complying by that time.

July 5 is deadline to register

Friday, July 5, is the deadline to register to vote in this year's presidential election, County Registrar Lamar Cline reminded prospects this week.

He is still awaiting official word from Jackson on the constitutional amendment, approved in a referendum earlier this month causing the residence requirement in Mississippi to be changed to two years.

Until it is certified by the secretary of state, the old two-year requirement will be in effect.

The new plan requires one year residence in the state and county and six months in the precinct.

New registration is now both at the Courthouse and at City Hall, officials reported from both locations. Some twinning is anticipated, however, before the deadline as interest heightens in the presidential contest.

Derailment causes train delay on L&N

Railroad service was interrupted for several hours at Bay St. Louis and other Coastal points Wednesday morning when a wheel broke on a freight car, overturning one car and badly damaging two others about 7:10 a.m. Wednesday morning near the Pass Christian depot. No one was injured.

The freight train, No. 471, consisting of about 187 cars, was New Orleans bound but could not resume its journey. Meanwhile, passengers on the New Orleans bound Pam American were transferred to buses at Gulfport. The Humming Bird, due here at 9:20 a.m., was held in New Orleans until the rail was cleared.

B. A. Durbin, telephone maintenance for the L & N, went to the scene and after returning said the wheel apparently broke at the first crossing north of the Pass Christian depot and the cars derailed three crossings south of the depot, a distance of about a half mile. The two cars carried cement.

A MESSAGE TO THE CITIZENS OF HANCOCK COUNTY

By Board of Supervisors

President

RUSSELL ELLIOTT

In the June 13th issue of the Sea Coast Echo appeared a ridiculous ad for the purpose of degrading the Board of Supervisors. I originally intended to ignore this feel it is my duty to deny these false accusations and half-truths, and to defend the members of the Board.

It is not my intention to carry on a newspaper debate with everyone who disagrees with the Board, - our meeting is open to all citizens at all times to discuss their complaints - or to go into lengthy details as to the financing of County projects. All intelligent people can see for themselves that there has been a tremendous amount of service and action during the past five and a half months, and these expenditures were not only necessary, but very conservative for the accomplishments made. The author of the article did not present these expenses in their true light, which as stated above, can be explained by just considering the source of the false and half true statements. Also in reference to the monies spent, they were agreeable to the action of the June 13th article as long as he was on the payroll. Now that he has been removed from the payroll, he is attempting to mislead you as to the sincerity of this very progressive Board.

Incidentally, the County bills were paid last month.

It was his intention to make you believe that we were a financial Board, which is definitely a lie, nor will he split this Board with his lies. In discussing this with Mr. Kellar (who the writer would have you believe is a member of the Board), he does not agree and he does not approve of the article. We are the most compatible Board his own convictions.

Now let me state a few facts for the record, and to further prove that this person does not know what he is talking about.

THESE ARE THE FACTS!

Total motions presented to the Board since January 1, 1968---287. Mr. Kellar voted against the majority of the Board on only two motions, and neither were concerning expenditure of money.

A breakdown of the motions presented is as follows:

Kollar & Russ	95 motions
Cusvas & Kellar	56 motions
Moutray & Kollar	31 motions
Russ & Moutray	39 motions
Moutray & Cusvas	28 motions
Cusvas & Russ	40 motions

As the record will show, Mr. Kellar has been with the majority of the Board in approving or disapproving 265 out of 287 motions, and this is a record of record. Missions A-3 and A-4.

I feel that this Board has nothing to apologize for. I am doing my best to keep our power to straighten out a very poor financial condition that we inherited. I wish to reaffirm our pledge to you, the intelligent citizens of Hancock County, that we will serve you twenty-four hours a day and to the best of our ability.

I sincerely request that you continue your endorsement of our actions to make Hancock County move progressively forward.

I ask you to fervently pray with us that the good Lord will continue to look favorably on all the citizens of our great county and direct our actions so that we can (in our small way as your public servants) bring a healthy and stable economy to Hancock County.

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL

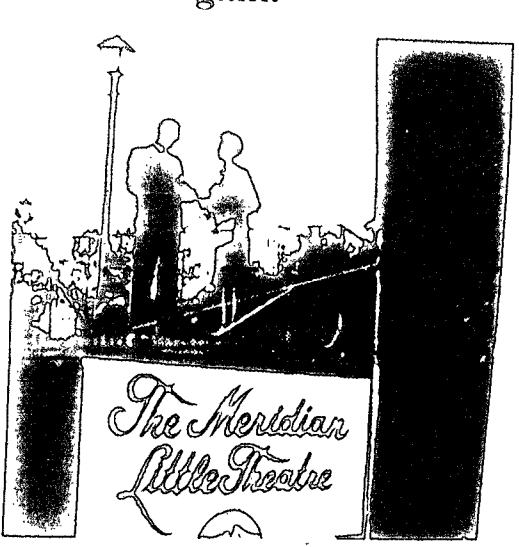

The advertisement below, currently appearing in national publications, is another in a "Report to the Nation" series we are sponsoring along with our parent organization, The Southern Company. By telling the nation the dramatic story of our region's dynamic progress, we hope to further enhance its development.

Glenn Ball
came to Mississippi to help run a giant insulation board plant.

Look what he and his wife got in the bargain.

Local native Glenn Ball, president of Meridian Theatre, helped manage the construction of the theatre building and the largest of its kind in the United States. The plant, 11 acres of equipment and facilities under roof, turning out 250 million square feet of insulation board product a year.

This is one of the finest places in the country, says Ball. Meridian has all the advantages: friendly people, pleasant surroundings, and many excellent cultural activities.

He and his wife LaVonne enjoy the Meridian Little Theatre (above) and other top cultural events such as the Festival of Arts, Meridian Choral, and Meridian Symphony.
Also, there's splendid hunting and fishing within a 20 minute drive.

TRY OUR REFRESHING SHOW COMES ALL
NOW OPEN EVERY AFTERNOON
3:00 PM SAT & SUN 1:30 PM

With humble apologies to John McRea, I humbly dedicate the following to our latest victory, victory of World War I, now holding their annual casket convention in Highland and at the Logan home in Bay St. Louis.

In Flanders field, the poppies grow
Among the crosses, once you know,
And in the sky, the jets
Now quickly wing in view.

Still are the dead
Their graves remain,
Through time and tears,
And sun and rain,
And yet more die, in foreign fields.

Though quarrels you took with other foes,
The torch, we threw to you, still glows
The flame remains, please hold it high,
Renew the faith of those who die,
Or we'll not sleep, though poppies grow,
In Flanders field.

Fun galore for the veterans

And now we want to extend the warmest possible welcome to all of you and hope the 1968 convention will be your biggest and best ever. Lots of sensational things are planned in the way of entertainment and gifts, but we won't give away any secrets till all of the festivities are over.

Guess the most people seen in any one spot over the weekend were those taking in the big Our Lady of the Gulf church fair on Saturday and Sunday.

Lings return for vacation

Ingrid and Ed Ling, the children, three dogs and their cat so missed all of their Hancock County friends that they rented a Louisville Garden apartment in which to spend their two-week vacation. They drove down from Huntsville, Ala., on June 9, and combining forces with Elaine Doucet, entertained at a get-together Friday night. Guests included Marian and Frank Hillo, Lucy Baker, Evelyn and Charlie Cox, Lois and Ed Morgan, Phyl and Jimmy Lagasse, Beverly and Bob Neschdurr, Betty Lou Ney and Al Krosak. The fun began with lobster dinner at the yacht club, and ended up at poolside of the apartment.

Stork gets busy--again?

Time now for some stork news. Evelyn and Charlie Cox are once again on the big bird's itinerary and we're not quite sure, but feel that another local medic and his pretty wife may have a similar announcement coming up. (And we are not, we repeat not, referring to Robbie and Henry Maggio.)

Former Bay resident Bette (Mrs. William) Ireland came all the way from Wisconsin to be on hand for the birth of her third grandchild, Karen and Bill Ireland, who no live in Gulfport, are the proud parents, and at this point we're at a loss to find out whether the new arrival is a boy or girl, birth weight or any of the other usual statistics.

Irene (Mrs. Ben) Hillo accidentally accomplished some sort of botanical feat. When she left for her recent vacation, Irene instructed those remaining at home to clean out the refrigerator. This was done with the exception of a single silver of red cabbage which promptly sprouted and for all the world, resembles a very exotic orchid.

Back home again

Welcome home Mabel Brown. Mabel left her Clermont Harbor home for the bright lights of New Orleans, but after one year in the city decided that there's absolutely no place like the coast.

Marie and Hap Carter also returned to Waveland and are now living in their recently remodeled home on Terrace. They actually came home last summer, but did very little getting around as Hap broke both legs very badly shortly after their return, and is just now able to drive again, mostly only with the aid of braces. He accused the former Air Corps ace of trying to fly without a plane, and he admitted the accident happened almost that way. He was topping a large fruit tree and his brother, thinking him safely on the ground, pulled the trunk down, using a winch and truck, and our Hap cascaded down among the branches. Anyway, we're happy to have this attractive couple in our midst once again.

Getting better

Stanley Bourgeois is due a get well visit. He was quite ill after suffering a heart attack almost three weeks ago, but has efficiently recovered to be allowed visitors in his Hancock General Hospital room.

Eddie Marquez is also getting around, but still suffers from a severe leg laceration, the result of a grass cutting mishap. Eddie was moving the lawn of his Washington Street home when a cord became caught in the blades and was thrown almost through his leg.

George Hammer is the nature eat's answer to Santa Claus. He's sporting, the shortest, spinniest trim in town these days.

Collie, anyone?

Sylvia (Mrs. Thomas) Gager would love to be able to keep a beautiful fox and white male collie which wandered into her yard at the end of last week. We were three days, and that's all she can remember. She says the animal is friendly, apparently well fed, and is wearing a large white collar. The owner may call her at 474-1171.

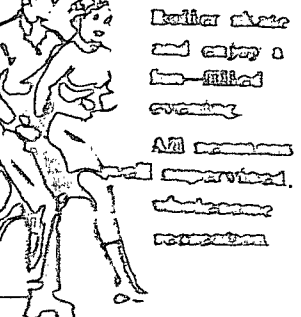

Bridal doings

Tamara Becklund, bride, and her groom, Ed Becklund, were married in a ceremony at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Ed Becklund, 1222 North Main St. and Albert Becklund were out of it. Ed's mother, Mrs. Becklund, was the bride's mother. The bride's mother, Mrs. Becklund, was the bride's mother. The bride's mother, Mrs. Becklund, was the bride's mother.

ford Becklund, mother of the bride, chose off white lace with ruffles at the throat and wrists and her hair was fashioned of ribbon in the same soft shade. Her corsage was an orchid as was that of Mrs. Watts, the groom's mother. She wore a linen sheath in a becoming shade (Cont. on Page 5-B.)

The honoree was presented a pale yellow orchid corsage and her mother Mrs. Clarence Schindler and mother of the groom-elect, Mrs. Matthew Cuevas, were given white carnation corsages.

Miss Reinitke is to marry Mr. Cuevas

Mr. and Mrs. R.J. (Red) Reinitke have announced the engagement of their daughter, Clara Reinitke, to Samuel A. Cuevas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orca Cuevas.

Hancock County Civil Defense

Court House
Bay Saint Louis, Mississippi 39520

In answer to the articles that have been published recently in our local newspaper criticizing the expenditures of our civil defense unit, I would like to take this opportunity to bring the whole truth instead of just half of the truth to you the payers of Hancock County.

Prior to my appointment as the civil Defense Director of Hancock County by the Board of Supervisors, as a full time director, the county had a part time director. His salary in the part time status was $300.00 per month. My salary in the full time status was set at $600.00. As long as the Unit qualifies with the State and Federal Government, 50 per cent of the salaries are matched by the federal agency. In addition to the assisting funds provided for by the Government, in event disaster strikes the community. Had the Hancock County Civil Defense council maintained their status with the Federal Agency, they would have been in position to receive disaster funds in the amount of some $68,000.00, however, since this was not the case, the county lost these funds when Betsy hit the area. (Waveland received $38,000.00 because their unit was qualified).

Upon my appointment, I immediately began to take the necessary steps with the State and Federal units to make sure that the Hancock County unit received its qualification to be sure that we got the financial assistance that was available. This was accomplished in the first part of January, 1968. In February, three additional persons were hired, part time for the Civil Defense Unit: Mr. Favre, Mr. Ladner, and Mr. Peterson, at $150.00 per month. Since no prior plans had been submitted by the previous director to increase the personnel we were unable to receive matching funds on their salaries, until the 1968-1969 fiscal year, provided that they passed the examination as presently required by the State and Federal agency. Upon advising the Board, Mr. Ladner and Mr. Favre and Mr. Peterson were advised of the matter and all were sent letters and an application form. Mr. Favre and Mr. Ladner saw fit to fill out the application and return it to this office, and as a result were removed from the positions. Mr. Peterson has qualified with the Coast Guard Rescue unit and is presently on the Civil Defense unit.

On May 3, 1968, I submitted a report to the Board of Supervisors covering the period of January 2, 1968 through April 30, 1968, regarding the activities of the Unit during this period of time, along with the accomplishments of Civil Defense in the area.

In the purchase of surplus property we bought equipment that had an acquisition cost of $8,664.39 for $692.79. This saved the county $8,171.40. A great deal of the equipment is presently being used on county rolling stock.

The rescue unit was involved in saving the lives of 17 persons.

Civil Defense educational programs were presented to many of the school and civic organizations throughout the county, giving them a better knowledge of what to do in event of natural or man made disasters.

A complete study of the county was made to determine the shelter condition. Plans are presently being formulated to increase our capacity so as to provide shelter spaces for all of the citizens of Hancock County.

Reorganization of the Civil Defense units in local areas are in the process already the Kiln area has developed a unit in conjunction with the County Unit.

I have traveled over 5,000 miles securing information, making studies, and surveying conditions throughout the County, formulating plans to increase the activities of the County Unit. Areas of responsibility have been assigned to the units in the county and they in turn have submitted their general plan to this office.

Close cooperation between board, the Sheriff and Civil Defense is being maintained and as a result both offices are able to provide additional services to the community at no additional cost to the taxpayers.

The communications system has been improved, and when final, the county will have one of the best communications systems in the State of Mississippi.

The program papers for the coming fiscal year has been completed, and programs of Civil Defense have been included. This will assure Hancock County of federal funds available under the Civil Defense program.

Upon checking the records of the prior Civil Defense unit of the County, I did not find any records of reports showing the accomplishments of the Unit other than the payment of salary and expenses.

The board has been in constant touch with this office as to the availability of funds in the surplus commission that they can use in the operation of the county, and where they are available they make the purchase if available at a great saving to the county. All purchases are approved and paid for thru the clerk's office from the General Fund.

On May 20th, 1968 the Hancock Board of Supervisors received a letter from the Director, Mr. Kenneth Phillips, commanding the Board of Supervisors of the county and recommending the Hancock County Unit. He stated that the Civil Defense Unit had far exceeded the expectations of the State for the first five months of this year. As a result Hancock County was chosen to receive the Pass program, which is presently being conducted in the county at no cost to the citizens of the county.

Under the present conditions existing in the world, Civil Defense has become a vital factor, and provisions must be made to assure that the citizens of Hancock County will be able to survive any type of attack made upon them. The Board of Supervisors have the foresight to provide these facilities for their people and I am sure they have been big enough to correct and adjust the conditions.

It is well to remember that these five months assumed their position in the past. The accomplishments that they have made under the direction of the Board of Supervisors and the County Unit is to be commended by the entire community.

We're referring to the fact that Bay High's summer session began promptly at 9:30 a.m. Monday, June 10, and these aspiring to earn a full credit will have 10 weeks going on days each week. Some are forced to attend due to the fact that they just didn't make the grade, while others are going to earn extra credits and the rigorous schedule shouldn't leave anyone with much spare time on their hands.

Some college students too have returned to classes to pass the usual vacation months and enable them to receive diplomas at bit earlier. Kathleen Maloney, Sharon Lador and two who'll spend the next few months studying. Sharon has enrolled in Ole Miss, Kathleen in Jeff Davis Junior College.
